Walking India, shows which are the seeds to be implemented to generate a good net-development. A good planning with gender perspective could help women to develop everyday activities without renouncing to taking care of their personal needs.

The icons define the needs that the net must incorporate. In the survey different factors that intervene in the perception and organization of public space classified in the ten topics. The next step is to develop an imaginary route of an Indian woman, once the NKD net has been implemented. The tour is organized from two common points determined by women everyday life and the net facilitates the incorporation of other activities in the way that these two points.