12 voids

The transformation difficulties between the site and the city of Barcelona led to the construction of a new industrial complex of the same company in Montcada i Reixac, near Barcelona (1917) which eventually led to the closing of the factory in Castell de la Plana.

Despite the historical interest in the previous architecture (Castilian brick vaulted ceilings) and the magnificence of the surrounding landscape, the complex is currently in an advanced state of decline.

Twelve spaces of opportunity have been detected inside the factory complex with a strong inherited potential to reuse post-industrial activity.