Organisations are Communities BUT Communities are not Organisations

Cystems transform ideas into reality and are themselves transformed in the process. Cystems can practise excellence in these transformations.

A NEW DEFINITION OF EXCELLENCE FOR CYSTEMS.
Excellence is a voluntary ongoing process of agreeing emerging expectations. It involves all creators, consumers and complementors in the definition, realisation, and delivery of these expectations in an ethical, efficient, effective and elegant manner.

Transformation Barriers: Communication, Complexity, Conflicts, Constraints, Competition.

Do you see what I see? A Cystem practising excellence understanding itself, its task and the barriers it faces within its TIMEFRAME.

The practise of excellence is a continuum, an emerging property.

Creating Shared Meaning and Understanding Is a Prerequisite for Excellence.

Dr. Bob Kennedy PhD. Lecturer. Institute of Technology, Sligo, Ireland. Tel: 353 719155265 Email: kennedy.bob@itsligo.ie