in co-operation with the
EAAE/AEEA

Theme of the conference:

The history of Western architecture is intimately bound up with the development of the European city. From Antiquity to Gothic times, through the ages of the Renaissance, Baroque and Classicism, into the industrial era, the subsequent urban architectures determined the characteristic composite form of the European city. This conference wants to investigate the role and impact of the architectural projects on the formal identity of the European city. In what way do architectural interventions contribute to and catalyze the process of transformation and renewal of existing urban areas, both now and in the past? Which are the programmes, typologies and architectural languages that anticipate these continues processes of urban transformation in Europe? But also: can the architectural idea of a 'European city' still persist, in a time of ongoing globalization, or has it by now become an anachronism?
